Fourth Ward Park, approximately 30 city blocks, is bordered by the quadrant called Fourth Ward – a neighborhood that has been a hub of activity for the city's residents. 315 W. 9th Street was once the home of the Bagley-Mullen House, designed in 1905 in Colonial Revival style. 1895. This Craftsman Revival residence was built by a local carpenter and farmer named Bagley. This house has been revitalized and added to the National Register of Historic Places.

316 W. 9th Street is the location of the Crowell-Berryhill Store, which was originally a store owned by the Berryhill family. The store was later expanded to provide a trade and banking center. To the north of 316 W. 9th Street, 312 W. 9th Street is the location of the Bootlegger House, a unique building that was built in 1905 with unique oval windows and two rooms. The house was later used as a rooming house during WWII and was later renovated and restored. 412 N. Poplar Street is the location of the Sloan-Davidson House, a beautiful example of the late Victorian approach to architecture. The house features a curved wall in the dining room and a heart pine floor. This house was later renovated in 1973 to a single family residence.

The area is filled with historical landmarks and points of interest. 237 N. Tryon Street is the location of the First Presbyterian Church, which was built in 1907, Modified 4-Square. Blair House is an example of the interpretation of Folk Architecture. 511 N. Church Street is the location of the Liddell-McNinch House, a beautiful example of the late Victorian approach to architecture. The house features a curved wall in the dining room and a heart pine floor. This house was later renovated in 1973 to a single family residence.

319 W. 9th Street is the location of the Bagley-Mullen House, designed in 1905 in Colonial Revival style. 1895. This Craftsman Revival residence was built by a local carpenter and farmer named Bagley. This house has been revitalized and added to the National Register of Historic Places. 301 N. Pine Street is the location of the Crowell-Berryhill Store, which was originally a store owned by the Berryhill family. The store was later expanded to provide a trade and banking center. 513 N. Pine Street is the location of the Sloan-Davidson House, a beautiful example of the late Victorian approach to architecture. The house features a curved wall in the dining room and a heart pine floor. This house was later renovated in 1973 to a single family residence.

The area is home to many other historic landmarks and points of interest. The area is filled with unique architecture and points of interest. The area is home to many other historic landmarks and points of interest. The area is filled with unique architecture and points of interest. The area is home to many other historic landmarks and points of interest. The area is filled with unique architecture and points of interest. The area is home to many other historic landmarks and points of interest. The area is filled with unique architecture and points of interest. The area is home to many other historic landmarks and points of interest. The area is filled with unique architecture and points of interest. The area is home to many other historic landmarks and points of interest. The area is filled with unique architecture and points of interest. The area is home to many other historic landmarks and points of interest. The area is filled with unique architecture and points of interest.